

Meet Mary Campanelli – Administrative Assistant

Ohioans joke that if you don't like the weather here, wait a minute – it will change. The same might be said about the ebb and flow of the construction industry, today. Change is inevitable. When once change was considered slow in the industry...these days there is constant adjustment and variation. It's one of the reasons Mary Campanelli enjoys her work at Geotech Services, Inc. "This is not a cookie-cutter business by any stretch," she shares. "Every day is unique," she adds.

Mary is the administrative assistant at Geotech and is the office 'go to' on everything from maintaining marketing lists to invoicing and contractor registrations. "I've been in the engineering field for over 24 years and one of the things I've seen change is an increased use of technology," she offers. "We are really state-of-the-art here and our growth is a testimony to our ability to adapt to change."

Campanelli has been with Geotech Services for 10 years and her role has evolved as the industry and company has grown. "Early on I was doing operations support as well as administrative," she says. "Today mine is mostly administrative and accounting support work. I help wherever Steve and Ray (Tartabini) need me." She's also one of the company's resident notary publics.

Away from the office, Mary enjoys attending live theater and concerts. Her musical tastes range from Lady Gaga and Bruno Mars to Andrea Bocelli. "I know," she laughs, "a pretty broad range of music."

Campanelli also likes to relax by sketching. "It's soothing and a great stress reliever," she explains. She also enjoys gourmet cooking, going to Cleveland Cavaliers games and watching the Cleveland Indians. Her taste in music variety seems to be a continuation of her range of work responsibilities. "I just love variety in life, don't you?" Mary asks.
